IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF GEORGIA

DUBLIN DIVISION

CLERK C. Adams
SO. DIST. OF GA.

ANTONIO MOSES,

Plaintiff,

v.

WILLIAM DANFORTH, Warden, Telfair
State Prison,

Defendant.

CV 313-089

MAGISTRATE JUDGE'S REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION

Plaintiff, an inmate incarcerated at Telfair State Prison in Helena, Georgia, seeks to proceed in forma pauperis ("IFP") in this action filed pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1983. For the reasons set forth below, the Court REPORTS and RECOMMENDS that Plaintiff's request to proceed IFP be DENIED (doc. no. 2) and that this action be DISMISSED without prejudice.

I. BACKGROUND

A prisoner attempting to proceed IFP in a civil action in federal court must comply with the mandates of the Prison Litigation Reform Act ("PLRA"), Pub. L. No. 104-134, §§ 801-810, 110 Stat. 1321 (1996). 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g) of the PLRA provides:

In no event shall a prisoner bring a civil action or appeal a judgment in a civil action or proceeding under this section if the prisoner has, on 3 or more prior occasions, while incarcerated or detained in any facility, brought an action or appeal in a court of the United States that was dismissed on the grounds that it is frivolous, malicious, or fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, unless the prisoner is under imminent danger of serious physical injury.¹

The Eleventh Circuit has upheld the constitutionality of § 1915(g) because it does not violate an inmate's right to access to the courts, the doctrine of separation of powers, an inmate's right to due process of law, or an inmate's right to equal protection. Rivera v. Allin, 144 F.3d 719, 721-27 (11th Cir. 1998), abrogated on other grounds by Jones v. Bock, 549 U.S. 199 (2007).

II. DISCUSSION

A. The Complaint Should Be Dismissed Because Plaintiff Has Three Strikes Under § 1915(g) and Does Not Qualify for the Imminent Danger Exception, and therefore He Cannot Proceed IFP.

A review of Plaintiff's history of filings reveals that he has brought at least three cases that were dismissed for being frivolous or malicious or for failing to state a claim upon which relief may be granted: (1) Moses v. Lamb, et al., 113-cv-00122 (M.D. Ga. Oct. 16, 2013) (dismissed for failure to state a claim); (2) Moses v. Sproul, 113-cv-00065 (M.D. Ga. July 9, 2013) (dismissed for failure to state a claim); and (3) Moses v. Gray, 113-cv-00098 (M.D. Ga. June 11, 2013) (dismissed for failure to state a claim). All of these previous cases qualify as strikes under § 1915(g) because they were dismissed for failing to state a claim. Because Plaintiff has at least three strikes under § 1915(g), he cannot proceed IFP in the present case unless he can demonstrate that he qualifies for the “imminent danger of serious physical injury” exception to § 1915(g).

In order to come within the imminent danger exception, a prisoner must be in imminent danger at the time he files suit in district court, not at the time of the alleged incident that serves as the basis for the complaint. Medberry v. Butler, 185 F.3d 1189, 1193 (11th Cir. 1999). Here, Plaintiff’s complaint alleges that his requests to be placed in protective custody were denied, and that the administration has placed him in a disciplinary program because of his requests. (See doc. no. 1, p. 5.) Plaintiff refers to an incident over eight months ago in which he was stabbed while at a different facility, but fails to show that he was in imminent danger at the time he filed the instant complaint. (Id.) Although he states that he seeks to be placed in protective custody because he fears for his life (id.), Plaintiff’s vague fear does not by itself demonstrate that he was in any imminent danger when he filed his complaint. Medberry, 185 F.3d at 1193. Therefore, Plaintiff fails to demonstrate that he should be excused from paying the full filing fee under the “imminent danger” exception to § 1915(g)’s three strike rule.

B. The Complaint Should Also Be Dismissed Because Plaintiff Failed to Disclose His Prior Cases.

Moreover, the form complaint that Plaintiff used to commence this case, “Form to be Used by Prisoners In Filing a Complaint Under the Civil Rights Act, 42 U.S.C. § 1983,” requires that prisoner plaintiffs disclose: (1) whether they have brought other federal lawsuits while incarcerated, (2) whether they were allowed to proceed IFP in any such lawsuits, and (3) whether any such suit was dismissed on the ground that it was frivolous, malicious, or failed to state a claim. (Id. at 1-3.) The Eleventh Circuit has indicated its approval of dismissing a case based on dishonesty in a complaint. In Rivera, the Court of Appeals reviewed a prisoner plaintiff's filing history for the purpose of determining whether prior cases counted as "strikes" under the PLRA and stated:

The district court's dismissal without prejudice in Parker is equally, if not more, strike-worthy. In that case, the court found that Rivera had lied under penalty of perjury about the existence of a prior lawsuit, Arocho. As a sanction, the court dismissed the action without prejudice, finding that Rivera "abuse[d] the judicial process[.]"

Rivera, 144 F.3d at 731; see also Young v. Sec'y Fla. Dep't of Corr., 380 F. App'x 939, 940-41 (11th Cir. 2011) (per curiam) (affirming dismissal under inherent power of federal courts based on a plaintiff's failure to disclose prior cases on the court's complaint form).

The practice of dismissing a case as a sanction for providing false information about prior filing history is well established in the Southern District of Georgia. See, e.g., Brown v. Wright, CV 111-044 (S.D. Ga. June 17, 2011); Hood v. Tompkins, CV 605-094 (S.D. Ga. Oct. 31, 2005), aff'd, 197 F. App'x 818 (11th Cir. 2006) (per curiam). Here, under penalty of perjury, Plaintiff answered that he had not previously filed any lawsuit in federal court. (Doc. no. 1, pp. 1-3.) As noted above, Plaintiff has brought at least three other cases, all of which were dismissed for failure to state a claim. Thus, Plaintiff's answers were blatantly dishonest, providing another basis for dismissal of this case.

III. CONCLUSION

In sum, Plaintiff has accumulated at least three strikes against him and cannot satisfy the dictates of the "imminent danger" exception of § 1915(g). Thus, he fails to demonstrate that he should be excused from paying the full filing fee. Furthermore, even if Plaintiff were entitled to proceed IFP, the complaint should be dismissed because he has abused the judicial process by providing dishonest information about his filing history. Therefore, the Court REPORTS and RECOMMENDS that Plaintiff's request to proceed IFP be DENIED (doc. no. 2) and that this action be DISMISSED without prejudice. If Plaintiff wishes to proceed with the claims raised in this lawsuit, he should be required to initiate a new lawsuit, which would require submission of a new complaint. Dupree v. Palmer, 284 F.3d 1234, 1236 (11th Cir. 2002) (per curiam).

SO REPORTED and RECOMMENDED this 8th day of January, 2014, at Augusta, Georgia.
